water
shown number forces using contact frictional
stage
performed
flow
collapse
drag
regime
properties
run-out
equation vertical viscous
shows materials
distance
along
mass
flows
angle numerical problems
particles
height
time dissipation
loose interaction
used rheology
cell
mesh also comparison material
present
plane computational radius
functions
shear
kinetic columns
surface algorithm density simulations
DEM
different spreading
velocity permeability
slope
point
based per modelling
due approach
LBM
fluid
low column
longer
higher adopted
function
grains
energy method
system
volume pressure
pile similar aspect observed hydrodynamic increase mechanism involves final granular
size models
motion
phase
i.e
nodes
conditions
behaviour
force potential interactions distribution
solid simulation
stress
study MPM
initial grain describe horizontal effect critical evolution
packing dense deformation
high points
order
dry dynamics
case
ratio
model input condition however
Method
influence boundary large continuum
lattice
understand However
particle
failure important friction significant two soil resulting fraction capture results
scale
found applied front simple